The Aries Meta Goddess

Sekhmet is ALL about Power

Sekhmet's name, comes from Sekhem, an ancient Egyptian word meaning "sacred power" or sacred energy.

Sekhmet (a Solar Goddess) restores cosmic law (for Maat) and balance through the process of Divine Alchemy - transforming negative energy into its intended divine expression.

In ancient Egypt the first step on the path of initiation in reclaiming one's divine sovereignty and power was to go before a priestess of Sekhmet - in essence standing before Sekhmet herself. Here the initiate was asked if she was truly willing to let go of negative egoic patterns. Was she willing to be in full integrity with herself and operate from humility and respect for the initiatory process as an act of personal power?

This journey was NOT about gaining personal power to rule over others but rather to stand in the strength and power of her divine essence as an inspiration to all who were seeking guidance to fulfill their noble cause or purpose.

This is the phase of the journey where this is now truly possible.

The Constellation of the Twins a.k.a. Gemini the Latin word for Twins

The Sun passes through the Twins from June Solstice to July 20 every year. Venus is passing through the Twins this year from May 19 to June 08.

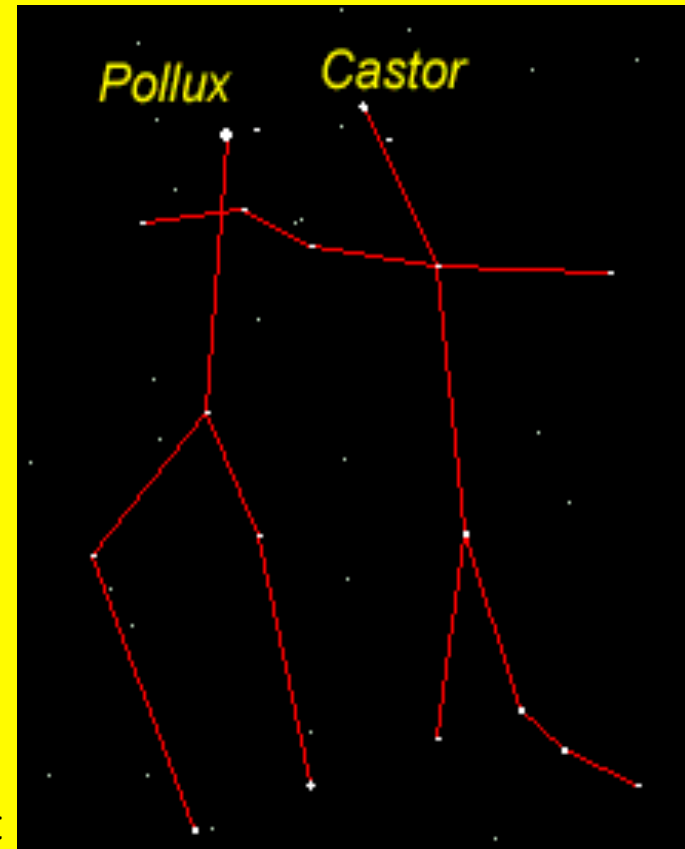

Mythically The Twins (a.k.a. Castor and Pollux or in Roman Mythology Romulus and Remus) represent the duality of mortality and immortality. Castor is mortal. Pollux is Immortal. Castor is slain in Battle.

Pollux begs Zeus to release him from his immortality so he can join his brother Castor in the great beyond as the constellation of the Twins

Native American tribes (including Cahuilla, Zuni, Navajo, Mescalero Apache, Hidatsa, and Iroquois) have stories about these stars as twin brothers who created the Earth, they killed monsters, and provided their people the essential tools for survival.
From Stars of the First People by Dorcas S Miller

Many cultures believed (and still believe) twins bring good luck. There are also stories about twins representing the dual tendency toward good (light) and evil (dark) within ourselves.

Balance within this duality creates equilibrium.

Venus Passes through the Twins in May and June

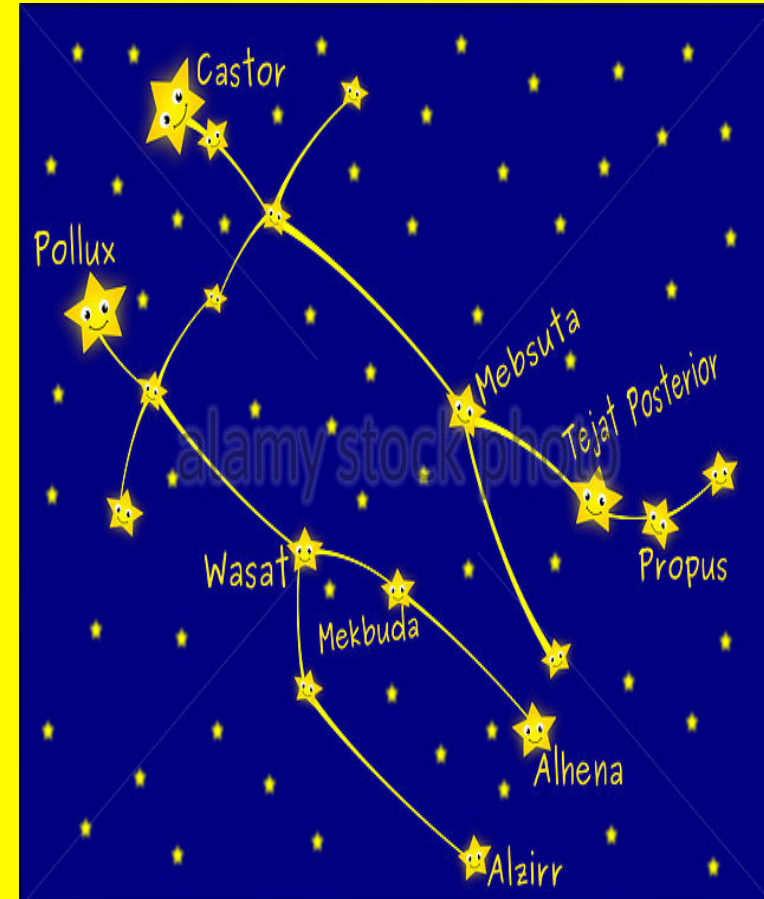

The Constellation of the Twins were protectors of home, hospitality, friendship, sports and sailors. Castor and Pollux were also Argonauts joining Jason in the Quest for the Golden Fleece.

Castor was about earthly rules and laws. Pollux was about the celestial - reminding us when we focus our thoughts on something - that is what becomes our co-created reality.

Patriarchal mythic stories focus on male twins yet many cultures focused on a male and female twin. We could imagine Venus passing through here is about rebalancing the importance of the feminine and the masculine working together.

The Chumash Indians did see these two stars as an older and younger sister. The Klamath Indians (in Southern Oregon and Northern California) still see these Stars and this constellation as boy/girl twins.

With Venus here at the Solar Plexus how does the divine feminine return to her equally important radiant feminine power – equally important - not more or less important than the masculine expression of power?

Jason and the Argonauts and the Quest for the Golden Fleece

The Quest for the Golden Fleece describes the Quest for reclaiming our own Divine Authority.

A deadly serpent (representing life force energy) guarded the Golden Fleece. The Divine Feminine Sorceress Medea charms the serpent assisting Jason in claiming the Golden Fleece.

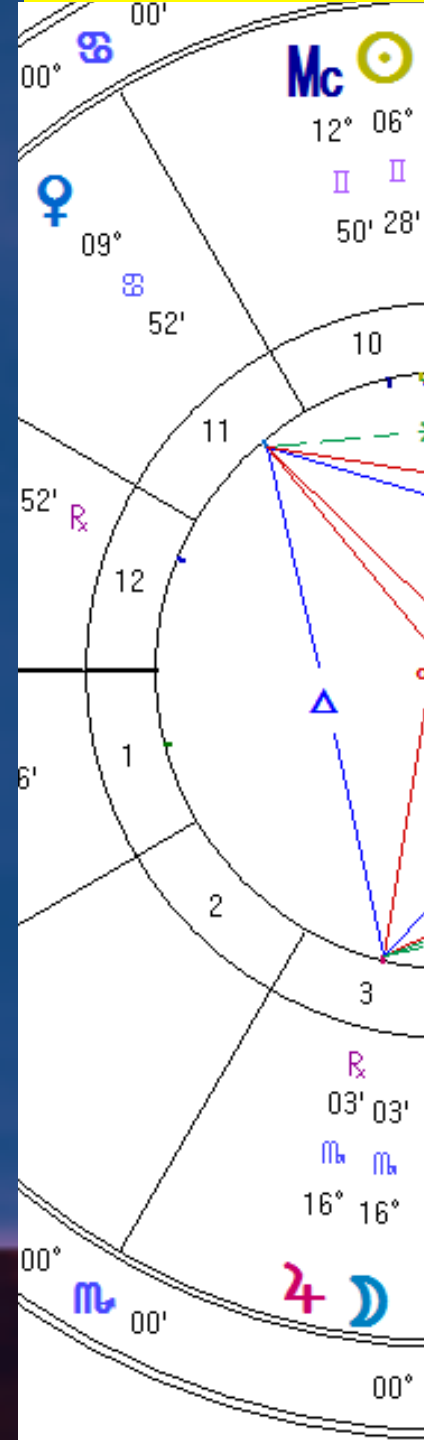

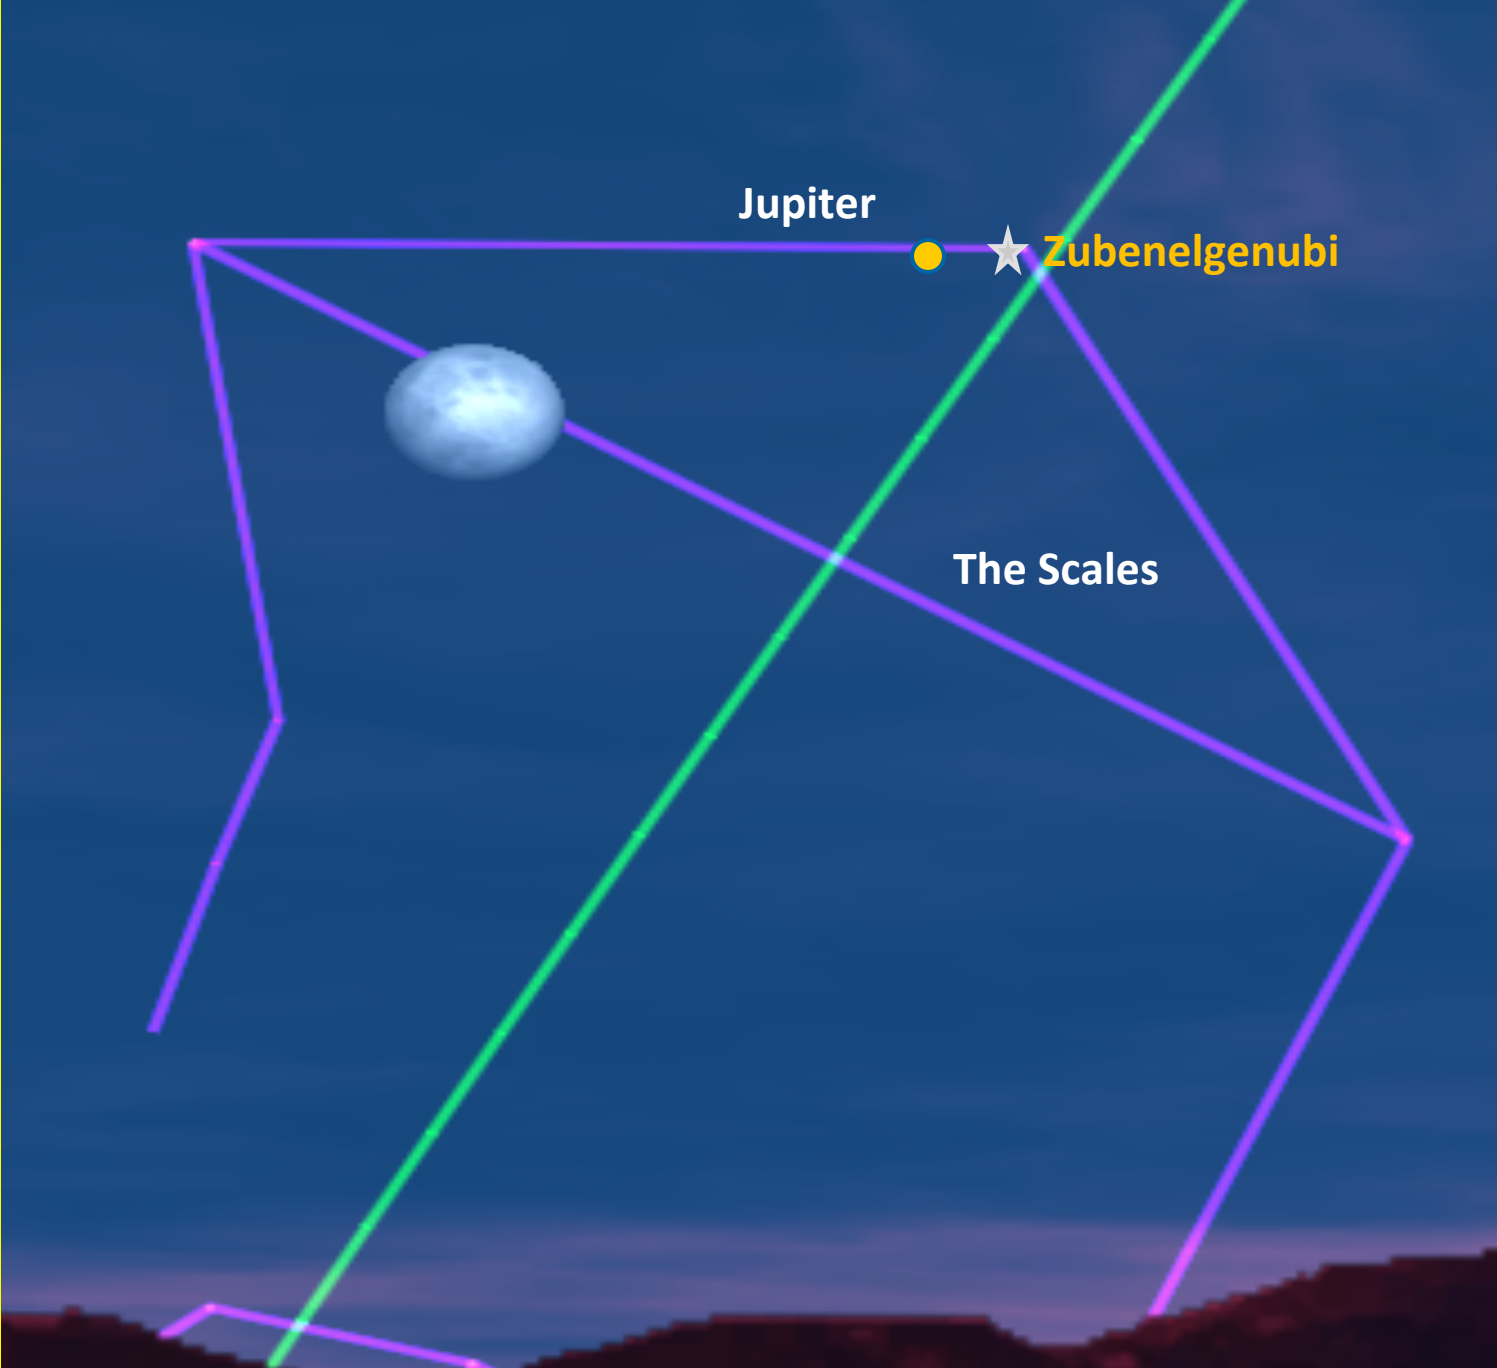

The power of the feminine was key in helping the masculine Jason in achieving his objective.

Jason then abandons Medea once he has what he wants.

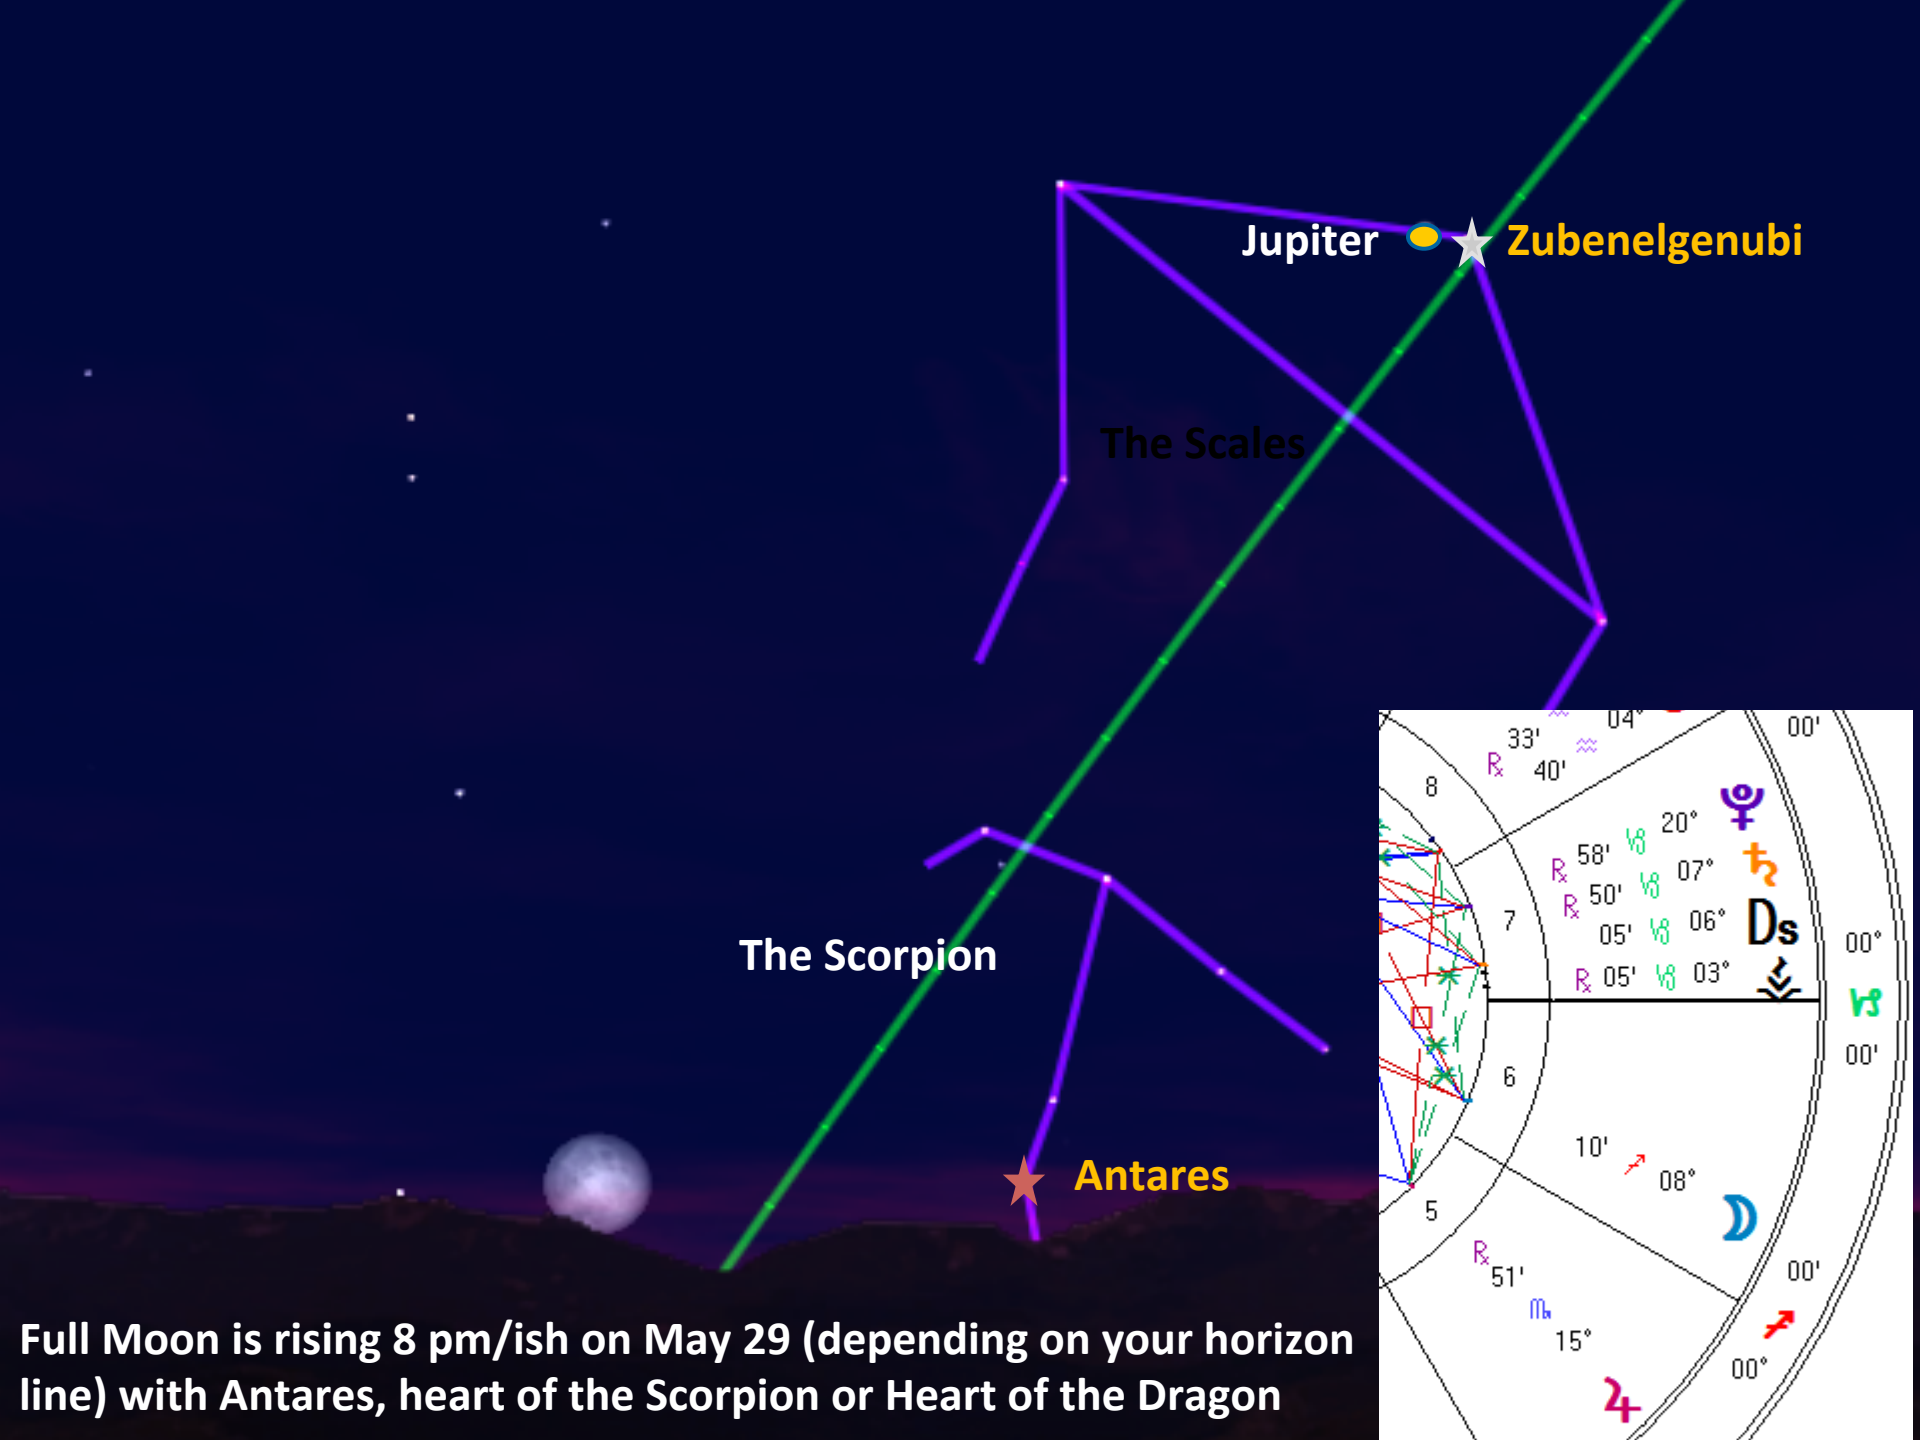

It is time for a new story where the masculine recognizes and honors the gifts and power of the feminine, where both are working together toward a shared equally beneficial outcome.

Super Hero Status: Create an alter ego for yourself - a Super Hero! Begin by listing or journaling the qualities in yourself that you love and admire.

Then list the qualities you see as weaknesses and imagine these qualities transformed into your greatest strengths.

Give yourself a Super Hero name, draw a fun sketch of yourself wearing your favorite superhero clothes and magical talismans, robes, capes, disguises, etc.

If you are feeling bold, take time to act “as if” you are this Super Hero. How would you spend your day? What do you see in the world around you that you want to meet with your ferocious loving heart, your creative solutions, your perfect-for-the-occasion super powers?

Bragging Exercise

The intent is to truly see, feel, and know your own greatness, your boldness, your amazingness. This is a great addition to a Gratitude Practice!

Walking: Schedule a regular walk with a friend where you take turns bragging on yourself.

At the end take some time to “brag on” your friend and vice versa!

Journaling Exercise: At the end of the day, brag in your Venus Journal for 10-20 minutes with specifics including moments where you showed courage, changed an old pattern, corrected yourself after getting out of alignment, etc. Use this as an opportunity to track progress in areas where you have set goals or intentions for yourself.

Both exercises are a way to celebrate yourself! AND remember daily celebration is life changing especially when you include gratitude.
