Leap Day February 29, 2024

The Root of Our Calendar System

The Julian calendar featured a 365-day calendar year with a leap year every four years.

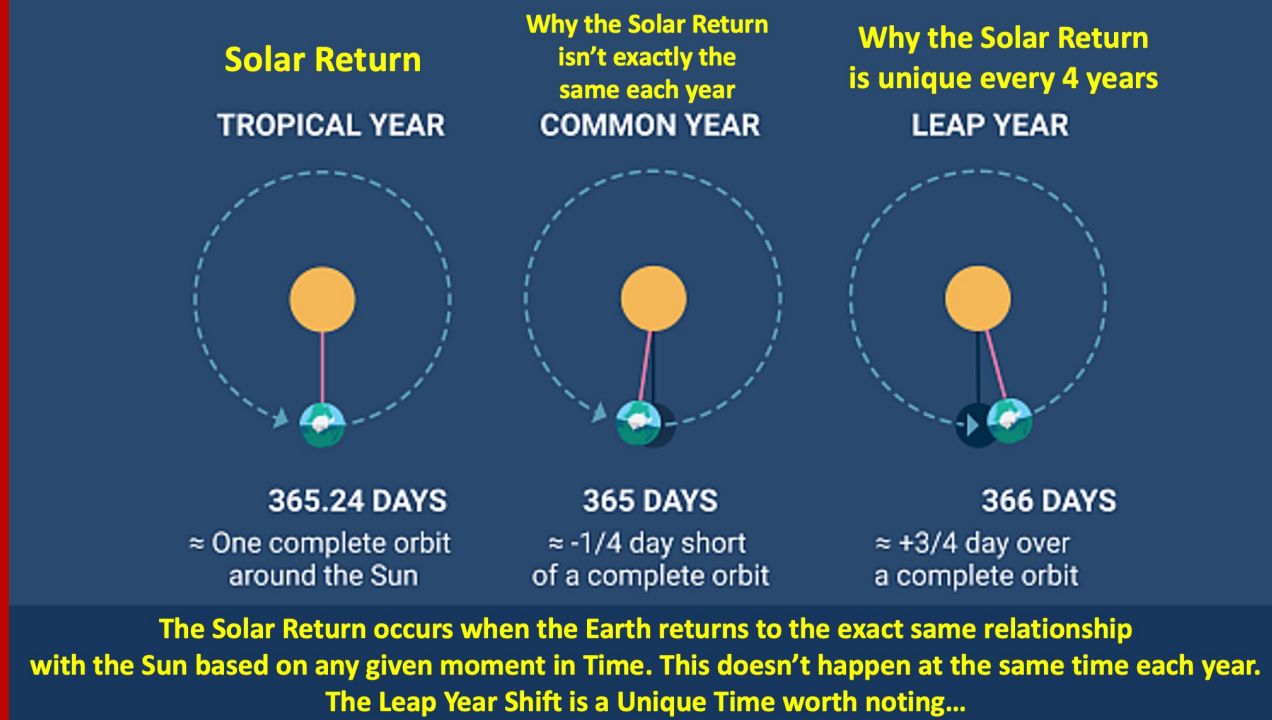

Over time astronomers realized the solar year included an extra 11 minutes. This added 24 hours every 131 years, and three days every 400 years.

This excess amounted to 10 days between 325 A.D. and 1582 A.D. In 1582 the new calendar jumped ahead 10 days (leaping from Oct 4 to October 15) restoring the March equinox to March 21.

Much of Europe resisted the new calendar until 1782 when they realized the Julian Calendar was now 11 days off from the seasons.

Between 1582 and 1752 BOTH calendars, old and new style, were used in Europe in different locations creating confusion.

In 1752 England and the not yet established United States decided to correct this discrepancy and move to the Gregorian Calendar – dropping 11 days in September 1752.

Weighs The Truth

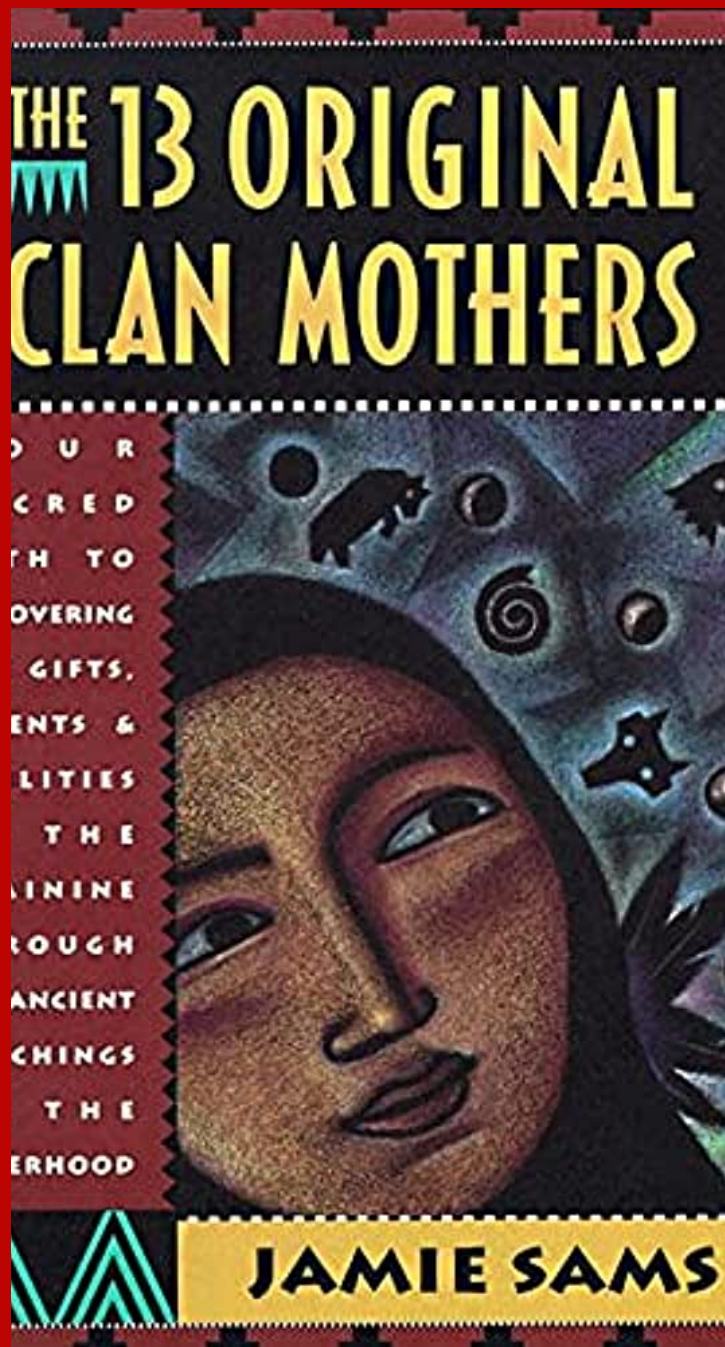

The Protectress of the meek
Weights the truth for all to see
Divine Law, seeking balance,
Setting the spirit free.

And here, amid the chaos
Of earthly trials she stands,
Ready to issue justice,
Compassion in her hands.

She answers when deception
Shows the destructive face
Of human greed and hatred,
Dividing every creed and race.

Keeper of Great Mystery's Laws,
Whose guiding ways we seek,
May we accept the oneness of
The truths we hear you speak.

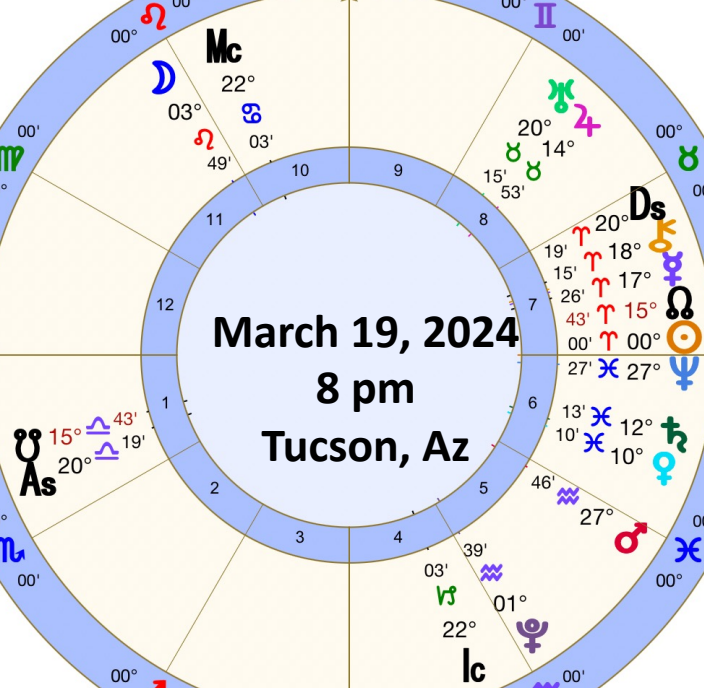

Weighs the Truth is the Clan Mother of the March New Moon Cycle

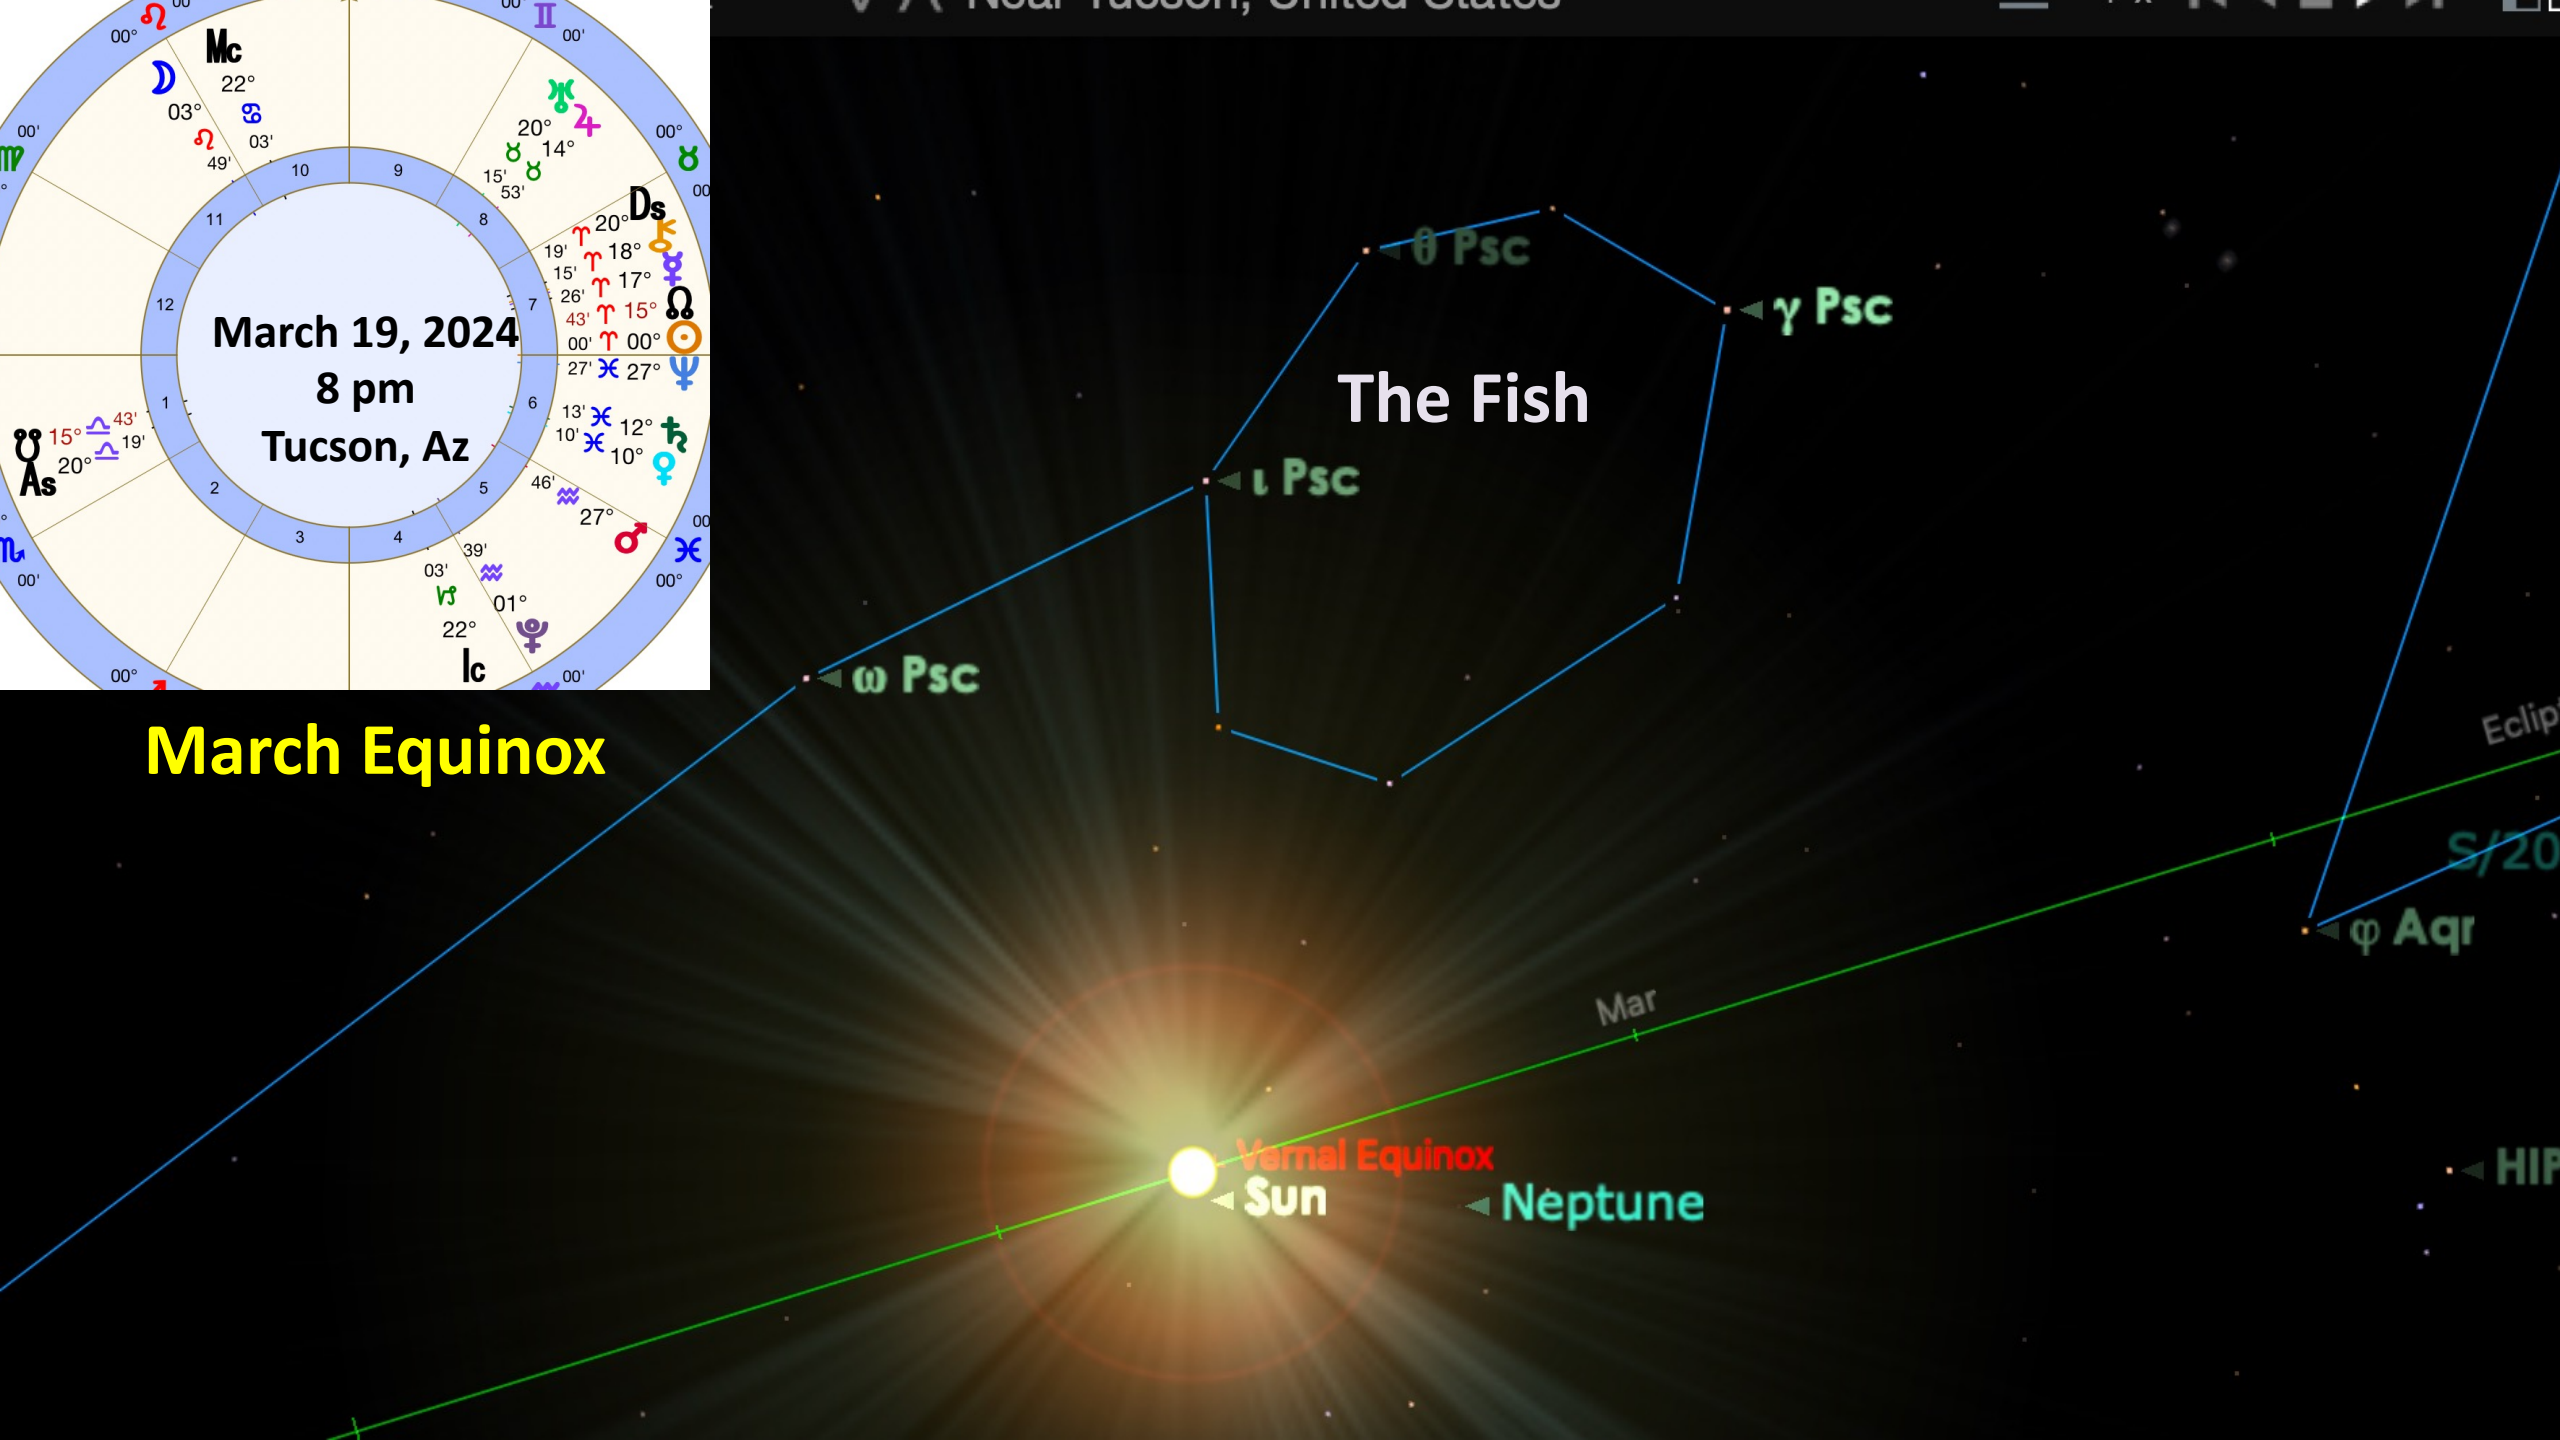

- Her color is Brown connected to the Earth
- She represents and teaches Divine Law
- She is Keeper/Guardian of Justice and Equality
- She is a fair judge of human rights
- She sees all sides of a situation and is not fooled by half-truths or lies
- She teaches the ability to respond and how to be self-determined
- She teaches how to nurture the positive using divine law
- She is the Mother of self-determination and responsibility
- She teaches responsibility for our actions and words through personal integrity, ethics and values
- She teaches how to find healing solutions
- She teaches how to ACCEPT THE TRUTH

Lord Ganesha (remover of obstacles) is associated with the Root Chakra including Family, Stability, Safety, and Wealth.

Mars is within about 7° of the Venus Moon conjunction suggesting this is adding support from the divine masculine in the form of Ganesh.

This is a powerful imagine to include in our ceremonial intent enhancing our ceremonial releasing of any blockages at the Root Chakra Gate.

Releasing at the Root Chakra Leo Meta-Goddess with Venus in Aquarius

Feb 16 – Mar 11

The Leo Goddess expresses through the Aquarius Goddess to serve our soul's journey. We explore our Divine natures, cultivate greater Self Love through increased consciousness, perspective and the collecting of information, in order to clear distortions that hold back our feeling safe and secure, grounded in our connection with the Earth.

How does gaining perspective serve loving ourselves more fully? How does envisioning the bigger picture bring us more fully into our Divine essences? How does increasing our consciousness invite greater Love into our pelvic floors?

We walk with the Lioness and Eagle Goddesses to understand from a wider outlook, allowing us to perceive blockages to grounding ourselves, so we may release them.

How would it feel to release distortions to living in supported security? What would it take to let go of any fears around intentional grounding? What would it take to remove any blocks to experiencing being consciously connected with the Earth at all times?

Releasing at the Root Chakra Leo Meta-Goddess with Venus in Pisces

Mar 11 — Apr 4

The Leo Goddess expresses through the Pisces Goddess, as we discover deeper layers of our Divine Selves, finding greater Self Love in service to Spirit. We heal to connect to Universal Love, merging with the Heart of the One, opening the flow for experiences of knowing we are always held by the Earth.

How does focusing our feeling senses into our hearts help us to release distortions to grounding and feeling safe as we walk on this Earth? How does Love show us that we are the Divine embodied? How does healing ourselves serve to open our hearts where we feel the Spirit within?

We walk with the Lioness and Ocean Goddesses to bring the Divine into our heart bodies, merged with Spirit. The Goddesses lead us to healing wounds to our roots, so we may love ourselves the way they and Gaia do.

What would it feel like to release the wounds that block our loving kindness and compassion for ourselves?

What would it take to release the distortions preventing us from flowing our energy into and back out of the Earth Mother?

How would it feel to be liberated from obstacles that impede our safety and security, always feeling supported by the divine?

Honoring the Queen Goddesses Quan Yin

She is the Goddess of Mercy. One of Buddhism's most beloved bodhisattvas, the embodiment of compassion. Bodhisattva — one who has earned to leave the world of suffering and is destined to become a Buddha, but has forgone the bliss of nirvana, and instead vows to forego enlightenment until all sentient beings are liberated. She is the pinnacle of kindness and love.

In Sanskrit she's known as Padma pani - "Born of the Lotus", the lotus symbolizing purity, peace and harmony. Blue Lotus oil connects you to her.

Kwan Yin is known as “she who hears the cries of the world: and is the protector of women, children, sailors, fishermen, anyone in trouble, the sick, disabled, and poor.

She is known as the dragon rider. Dragon's symbolic meanings include: wisdom, the Feminine, strength, divine powers, primal forces, and transformation.

Quan Yin (a.k.a. Kwan Yin) was a dragon master who lived 2000 years. She is often depicted riding a dragon in either the ocean or the sky.

Mythic Tale:

The son of the mighty Dragon King (a ruler-god of the sea) was in his fish form when he was caught by a fisherman. Taken from the sea, the son was unable to transform back into his dragon form.

His father, the mighty Dragon King, was also unable to help.

Distressed, the son called out to all of Heaven and Earth.

Hearing his cry, Quan Yin sent her disciple to recover the son in his fish form.

The fish was about to be sold in the market causing quite a stir as the fish was still alive hours after being caught.

Everyone present wanted to buy the fish as they concluded eating it would grant immortality.

Quan Yin's disciple begged the fish seller to spare the fish's life. The crowd, was angry and about to chase the disciple away when Quan Yin projected her voice from far away, saying:

“A life should definitely belong to one who tries to save it, not one who tries to take it.”

The crowd dispersed realizing their shameful actions and desire. The fish was brought back to Quan Yin, who promptly returned it to the sea.

Once back in the sea, the fish transformed back to a dragon and returned home.

In gratitude, the Dragon King sent Lung Nue (“dragon girl”) to present Quan Yin with the ‘Pearl of Light’ as a thank you for saving his son.

The precious ‘Pearl of Light’ was known to shine constantly for all eternity.

To the right is a Jade statue of Quan Yin (Kwan Yin) holding the Pearl of Light...

The background of the slide is a photograph of cinnamon trees. It shows several vertical trunks. Some trunks have their outer bark removed, revealing a smooth, reddish-brown inner bark. Other trunks are covered in grey, textured bark with white lenticels. Green leaves are visible in the background, some showing signs of being eaten by insects.

Deepening Practice for the Leo Meta Goddess at the Root Chakra Practicing Genuine Self Acceptance

Genuine Acceptance of ourself and others begins with compassion for wherever we find ourselves in this moment.

Hold a sympathetic space for whatever you are experiencing. Instead of resisting your feelings of fear or grief or anger, or hurt, or whatever, embrace your pain with kindness and tenderness.

Genuine Acceptance doesn't mean we like, want, choose or even support what we are experiencing. It means we aren't resisting it.

Accept the situation. It IS what it IS even if you wish it would end now.

Practice accepting a life situation either personal or in the greater collective. Notice where you may be resisting?

If you are resisting acceptance - journal to find out why?
What personal judgments and beliefs are you experiencing?

What is this showing you about your ability to accept yourself (or others) as you are (they are) in the present moment?

No Amount of Self-Improvement
can make up for any lack of Self-Acceptance.

"Sometimes, trying to change our negative
thoughts and emotions
can cause even more psychological harm.
Accepting them as they are however,
can allow us to let them go."
